once I was visiting President George H. W. Bush in Washington, while he was president, he took me out to lunch at the Alibi Club, a private club where he was a member. It was clear the staff there revered him. At one point, Bush took me into the kitchen and introduced me to the chef and the waiters. It was hard for me to imagine a president doing that, but he did. Leaving the kitchen, Bush said, “Never forget where you came from, Tommy.” I never have. —excerpt from Tommy: My Journey of a Lifetime © The Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin System. My Journey of a Lifetime
TOMMY G. THOMPSON AND DOUG MOE

A reflective and entertaining memoir by a master of politics

“A marvelous retelling of the American story, including the people in Tommy Thompson’s life and hometown. When I was the Speaker of the Wisconsin Assembly, he and I were friendly adversaries. He wanted all the votes, but cared about people and focused on the important issues.”
—Tom Loftus, former U.S. Ambassador to Norway

The many facets of Tommy G. Thompson—small-town grocer’s son, brash campaigner with a common touch, shrewd political strategist, savvy policy wonk, and ebullient promoter of Wisconsin—come across vividly in these pages. Thompson, with journalist Doug Moe, traces his journey from boyhood to politics to the world stage, including his unprecedented four terms as Wisconsin governor, his service as a cabinet secretary under President George W. Bush, and his continuing work in global efforts to fight AIDS, tuberculosis, and malaria.

Personal and revealing stories punctuate the biographical details and policy discussions. Here is Tommy as a young man, just happening to be on the National Mall in 1964 when Dr. Martin Luther King told the nation “I have a dream.” Here is Tommy as Wisconsin governor, struggling to start a Harley-Davidson motorcycle before leading “a pack of Hell’s Republicans” on a ride through the state. Here is Tommy in Washington after the 9/11 attacks, slipping out of a secure bunker (in defiance of orders) to aid the emergency medical response.

Thompson speaks candidly of his achievements and regrets, including his involvement with welfare reform, school choice, land conservancy, prisons, the financing of Miller Park, stem cell research, and health insurance.

TOMMY G. THOMPSON holds the record as Wisconsin’s longest-serving governor, from 1987 to 2001. DOUG MOE is a longtime Wisconsin journalist and biographer. His numerous books include The World of Mike Royko and Lords of the Ring: The Triumph and Tragedy of College Boxing’s Greatest Team.

Wildly Successful Farming
Sustainability and the New Agricultural Land Ethic

BRIAN DEVORE

Transforming agriculture by breaking barriers between tame and wild

“We don’t have to choose between healthy land and productive land—we can have both. DeVore’s careful chronicling of Midwest farmers who practice an agriculture that respects and supports nature will give you hope for the future.”—Kristin Ohlson, author of The Soil Will Save Us

Wildly Successful Farming tells the stories of farmers across the American Midwest who are balancing profitability and food production with environmental sustainability and a passion for all things wild. They are using innovative techniques and strategies to develop their “wildly” successful farms as working ecosystems. Whether producing grain, vegetables, fruit, meat, or milk, these next-generation agrarians look beyond the bottom line of the spreadsheet to the biological activity on the land as key measures of success.

Written by agricultural journalist Brian DeVore, the book is based on interviews he has conducted at farms, wildlife refuges, laboratories, test plots, and gardens over the past twenty-five years. He documents innovations in cover cropping, managed rotational grazing, perennial polyculture, and integrated pest management. His accounts provide insight into the impacts regenerative farming methods can have on wildlife, water, landscape, soils, and rural communities and suggest ways all of us can support wildly successful farmers.

BRIAN DEVORE is a contributor to farm and conservation magazines and an editor with the Land Stewardship Project in Minneapolis, Minnesota. He grew up on a crop and livestock farm in southwestern Iowa and, while serving in the Peace Corps, managed a dairy cooperative in Lesotho, Africa.

For anyone who loves a lake, this guide will help you know it more intimately

“Delivers the magic of lake living while conveying water science topics in a clear and engaging way. Whether you are on the lakeshore or far away, it will bring you back to the waters you love. A great read.”—Michael Engleson, executive director, Wisconsin Lakes

Why do fish jump? Why don’t lakes freeze all the way down to the bottom? Which lake plants are invasive? What are those water bugs? Is that lake healthy?

Whether you fish, paddle, swim, snowshoe, ski, or just gaze upon your favorite lake, A Lakeside Companion will deepen your appreciation for the forces that shape lakes and the teeming life in and around them.

You’ll discover the interconnected worlds of a lake: the water; the sand, gravel, rocks, and muck of the bottom; the surface of the lake; the air above; and the shoreline, a belt of land incredibly rich in flora and fauna. Explained, too, are the physical, biological, and chemical processes that determine how many and what kinds of fish live in the lake, which plants grow there, the color and clarity of the water, how ice forms in winter and melts in spring, and much more. Useful advice will help you look out for your lake and advocate for its protection.

TED J. RULSEH writes the newspaper column “The Lake Where You Live” and is active in lake-advocacy organizations, including the Wisconsin Citizen Lake Monitoring Network. The editor and publisher of several books on the Great Lakes region, he is the author of On the Pond: Lake Michigan Reflections. He lives in the lake-rich region of northeastern Wisconsin.

LEE ZACHARIAS

A haunting novel of nautical adventure, love, ghosts, and tragedy

“One of the most intensely written and beautifully conceived novels to come my way in many a season. It is also among the most gripping, and it maintains its hold until the final period—and even beyond. I will be thinking about these characters for a long, long time. Seldom have I read a story with so much life on every page. Zacharias is a master.”

—Steve Yarbrough, author of The Unmade World

“It was a huge and powerful ship with a tall, handsome pilothouse and big smoking stacks, no place for a girl, though I loved it, I cannot tell you how much I loved it.” In her eighty-fifth year, Fern Halvorson tells the story of a childhood journey across Lake Michigan and the secret she has kept since that ill-fated voyage.

As his wife lies dying in the brutally cold winter of 1936, Henrik Halvorsen takes his daughter Fern away with him. He captains a great coal-fired vessel, the Manitou, transporting railroad cars across the icy lake. The five-year-old girl revels in the freedom of the ferry, making friends with a stowaway cat and a gentle young deckhand. The sighting of a ghost ship, though, presages danger for all aboard.

LEE ZACHARIAS is the author of four previous books, including The Only Sounds We Make and Lessons, a Book of the Month Club selection. Her work has appeared in the Best American Essays series. LUCY JANE BLEDSOE

Stories at the intersection of wilderness, family, and survival

“From Antarctica to suburbia to the ancient past and a post-apocalyptic future, these tales of kick-ass women adventurers and survivor girls are big-hearted, breathtaking, and profound. Reading Lava Falls is like meeting an animal in the wild: I was rapt, unable to turn away, with no idea what would happen next.”—Micah Perks, author of What Becomes Us

“This novella and group of stories by Lucy Jane Bledsoe will move and surprise and thrill you. She brings us right into her characters’ lives, taking us on unexpected journeys. Through it all, the empowered and vulnerable women in this lively fictional world continually find themselves, so as readers we learn more about survival and are reminded of hope. We find ourselves delightfully renewed.”—Allen Gee, author of My Chinese-America

Scrabbling for ways to believe in themselves and the world, the spirited, heart-driven people who populate these stories find surprising pockets of hope. A woman returns to the Alaskan cabin of her survivalist childhood, full of misgivings and memories. A trip to Yellowstone sparks a crisis for a man who feels kinship with the wolves he glimpses there. Nursing painful pasts, sisters take a cruise together to Antarctica. A runaway finds salvation from violence in her own singing. And in the title novella, a Grand Canyon rafting expedition profoundly changes the lives of six women.

Refusing to buckle under the pressures of family and political traumas, the sojourners in this collection are unified by themes of creative expression and of love—how we define it, how we are impelled by it, and how we are lifted by it.

LUCY JANE BLEDSOE is an award-winning author of fiction and nonfiction, including the novels A Thin Bright Line and The Big Bang Symphony and the adventure essay collection The Ice Cave. She has traveled the length of the Grand Canyon, skied through Yellowstone National Park, kayaked and hiked in Alaska, and voyaged several times to Antarctica. She lives in Berkeley, California.

A teenage boy uses his wits to find his father’s killer

“A fast-paced, heartwarming mystery and coming-of-age tale that will appeal to readers from baby boomers to teens. The likable hero struggles with adolescence even as he searches for his father’s killer, and as his small town’s neighborliness is tainted with prejudice and corruption.”—Patricia Skalka, author of Death Rides the Ferry

As the Vietnam War grinds on and the Nixon presidency collapses, Minnow Finwick’s small world in Wisconsin has blown apart. His father, a deputy sheriff, has been murdered by the unknown “Highway 41 Killer.” His mom has unraveled. And a goon named Larry Buskin has been pummeling Minnow behind Neenah High.

Minnow finds support in the company of his roguish grandfather, his loyal pal Mark, and beautiful Opal Parsons, who has her own worries as the first African American student in their school. When the sheriff seems in no hurry to solve the murder, Minnow must seek justice by partnering with unlikely allies and discovering his own courage.

JIM GUHL grew up in the Fox Valley of Wisconsin in the 1960s and ‘70s and now lives in Hudson, Wisconsin. He is a writer and visual artist, retired from a career in engineering.

So yeah, I had only one eye, my girlfriend had vanished, and on top of everything else, I still had to live

Eighteen-year-old Joshua Cushing wakes up in a psych ward, not knowing how he got there. Worse, he has only one eye. And no one in his family will tell him what happened to his girlfriend, Sophie. The one thing he knows for sure is that something happened, leaving him with a self and a life he barely recognizes.

Once a popular long-distance runner, Josh is now flabby, frustrated, and furious about returning to his New Jersey high school to repeat his senior year. Forced to attend meetings with other “underage weirdos,” he sinks into his loneliness. But when Josh meets Elizabeth Rinaldi, things begin to change. The only other new student in his class, she has a scar on her forehead, a Southern accent, and an attitude. Sharing a status as outcasts and an aptitude for snark, Josh and Elizabeth help each other escape their pasts.

The Book of Joshua weaves an unforgettable story from family secrets, friendship, faith, love, and redemption. It brings readers deeply into the lives of those who suffer from mental illness, as well as the friends and family affected by it.

JENNIFER ANNE MOSES is a multigenre author whose many books include Tales from My Closet, Visiting Hours, and Bagels and Grits. Her journalism and essays have appeared frequently in Time magazine, the New York Times, Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and other publications.

“A haunting depiction of heartbreaking crime.” —Sara Paretsky, author of Fallout

“A great read and wonderful dialogue [that is] so natural and smart.”

—Wisconsin Public Radio

On a bracing autumn day in Door County, a prominent philanthropist disappears. Is the elderly Gerald Sneider—known as “Mr. Packer” for his legendary support of Green Bay football—suffering from dementia or just avoiding his greedy son? Is there a connection to threats against the National Football League? As tourists flood the peninsula for the fall colors, Sheriff Dave Cubiak’s search for Sneider is stymied by the FBI. When human bones wash up on the Lake Michigan shore, the sheriff has more to worry about than a missing man.

MICHELLE BRITTAN ROSADO

Poems of the relationships that shape us

“Strikes just the right, clear note to place in the register of memorable debuts. Rosado’s terrific new poems are salve and honey, even when the subjects of breaking and coming apart are at their beautiful core. Listen to the brilliant music of these pages.” —Aimee Nezhukumatathil, contest judge

Charting a journey through schoolyards and laundromats, suburban gardens and rice paddies, yoga studios and rural highways, Michelle Brittan Rosado crafts poems that blend elegy and praise. In settings from California to Malaysian Borneo, and the wide Pacific between them, she explores themes of coming-of-age, mixed-race identity, diaspora, and cultural inheritance. With empathy for the generations past, she questions how we might navigate our history to find a way through it, still holding on to the ones we love. Like an ocean wave, these poems recede and return, with gratitude for the quotidian and for beauty found even in fragments.

How the End First Showed

D. M. ADERIBIGBE

A Nigerian poet’s entrancing, defiant debut

“In the urgent, abrupt, incantational poems of D. M. Aderibigbe, an essential gesture is simile: the explicit, striving word ‘like’ recurs often. And in every poem Aderibigbe thinks in metaphor. In a world of difference, amid unique strokes of memory and abandonment, violence and love, that action of likeness attains spiritual force.” — Robert Pinsky

Crafting raw memories into restrained and compact verse, D. M. Aderibigbe traces the history of domestic and emotional abuse against women in his family. A witnessing son, grandson, nephew, and brother, he rejects the tradition of praise songs for the honored father, refusing to offer tribute to men who dishonor their wives.

Widening his gaze to capture the moral rhythms of life in Lagos, he embraces themes of love, spirituality, poverty, compassion, sickness, and death. Aderibigbe offers both an extended elegy for his mother and poems addressed to children of the African continent, poems that speak to the past that has made them.

We salivated; slices of yam softened.
We chewed our teeth; slices of yam perished.
Mother smiled. Father arrived, filled the room with curses;
his voice beat in our hearts, as thunder on the walls of a building.
His empty stomach was a bowl of anger.
In a room built with our silence, father was hitting mother.

— excerpt from “Hungry Man” © D. M. Aderibigbe. All rights reserved.

D. M. ADERIBIGBE is a PhD student at Florida State University. He is the author of a chapbook, In Praise of Our Absent Father, selected for the New Generation African Poets Series of the African Poetry Book Fund. Born and raised in Nigeria, he earned his MFA in poetry from Boston University.

A gripping story of how wolves returned to our midst

“We follow individual wolves as they are born, mate, and form new packs; and we share the author’s joy of finding new wolves, his excitement of following them with radio collars, and his sadness when some of them are shot . . . [An] excellent look at fieldwork in the wilds of the Midwest.”
—Booklist

“Wryly recounts the days when blizzards, broken-down vehicles, misinformed politicians, and uncooperative hunters made ‘DNR wolf biologist’ a less-than-appealing career.”—Animal Keepers’ Forum

It was 1978, and gray wolves had been extinct in Wisconsin for twenty years. Still, there were rumors from the state’s northwestern counties that they had returned. Dick Thiel, then a college student with a passion for wolves, was determined to find out. Keepers of the Wolves is his engrossing account of tracking and protecting the recovery of wolves in Wisconsin. Thiel conveys the wonder, frustrations, humor, and everyday hard work of field biologists, including the political and public relations pitfalls they regularly face.

This new edition brings Thiel’s story into the twenty-first century, recounting his work monitoring wolves as they spread to central Wisconsin, conflicts of wolves with landowners and recreationalists, changes in state and federal policies, the establishment of a state wolf-hunting season in 2012, and Thiel’s forecast for the future of wolves in Wisconsin.

RICHARD P. THIEL is retired from a career with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, where he was team chairman for Wisconsin’s wolf recovery plan in the late 1980s and later managed the Sandhill Outdoor Skills Center in Babcock, Wisconsin. He is active with the Timber Wolf Information Network and the International Wolf Center. He is the author of The Timber Wolf in Wisconsin and coeditor of Wild Wolves We Have Known.

Independence Corrupted
How America’s Judges Make Their Decisions
CHARLES BENJAMIN SCHUDSON

Reveals the mounting pressures on very human judges, with consequences for us all

“Provides a deep understanding of the call to public service. Judges are too often seen as distant, dispassionate rulers, but Schudson shows the difficult and often wrenching decision-making process that every judge must endure. A thoroughly readable book for every citizen who chooses to become better informed about this fascinating branch of government.”
—Aine Donovan, Dartmouth College Ethics Institute

With experience as both a trial and appellate judge, Charles Benjamin Schudson knows the burdens on judges. With engaging candor, he takes readers behind the bench to probe judicial minds analyzing actual trials and sentencings—of abortion protesters, murderers, sex predators, white supremacists, and others. He takes us into chambers to hear judges forging appellate decisions about life and death, multimillion-dollar damages, and priceless civil rights. And, most significantly, he exposes the financial, political, personal, and professional pressures that threaten judicial ethics and independence.

As political attacks on judges increase, Schudson calls for reforms to protect judicial independence and for vigilance to ensure justice for all. Independence Corrupted is invaluable for students and scholars, lawyers and judges, and all citizens concerned about the future of America’s courts.

CHARLES BENJAMIN SCHUDSON is a former trial and appellate judge, law professor, and Fulbright scholar. As an expert on the American judicial system, he has appeared on PBS, NPR, and Oprah and before the National Association of State Judicial Educators, the United States Conference of Mayors, the Senate Judiciary Committee, and many law schools. Unlearning Eugenics

Sexuality, Reproduction, and Disability in Post-Nazi Europe

DAGMAR HERZOG

The intertwined developments of the sexual revolution and radical disability activism

Since the defeat of the Nazi Third Reich and the end of its horrific eugenics policies, battles over the politics of life, sex, and death have continued and evolved. Dagmar Herzog documents how reproductive rights and disability rights, both latecomers to the postwar human rights canon, came to be seen as competing—with unexpected consequences.

Bringing together the latest findings in Holocaust studies, the history of religion, and the history of sexuality in postwar—and now also postcommunist—Europe, Unlearning Eugenics shows how central the controversies over sexuality, reproduction, and disability have been to broader processes of secularization and religious renewal. Herzog also restores to the historical record a revelatory array of activists: from Catholic and Protestant theologians who defended abortion rights in the 1960s–70s to historians in the 1980s–90s who uncovered the long-suppressed connections between the mass murder of the disabled and the Holocaust of European Jewry; from feminists involved in the militant “cripple movement” of the 1980s to lawyers working for right-wing NGOs in the 2000s; and from a handful of pioneers in the 1940s–60s committed to living in intentional community with individuals with cognitive disability to present-day disability self-advocates.

DAGMAR HERZOG is a Distinguished Professor of History and Daniel Rose Faculty Scholar at the Graduate Center, City University of New York. Her many books include Cold War Freud: Psychoanalysis in an Age of Catastrophes and Sexuality in Europe: A Twentieth-Century History.

An imprisoned journalist covertly documents Nazi murders

In February of 1945, during the final months of the Third Reich, Eva Noack-Mosse was deported to the Nazi concentration camp of Theresienstadt. A trained journalist and expert typist, she was put to work in the Central Evidence office of the camp, compiling endless lists—inmates arriving, inmates deported, possessions confiscated from inmates, and all the obsessive details required by the SS. With access to camp records, she also recorded statistics and her own observations in a secret diary.

Noack-Mosse’s aim in documenting the horrors of daily life within Theresienstadt was to ensure that such a catastrophe could never be repeated. She also gathered from surviving inmates information about earlier events within the walled fortress, witnessed the defeat and departure of the Nazis, saw the arrival of the International Red Cross and the Soviet Army takeover of the camp and town, assisted in administration of the camp’s closure, and aided displaced persons in discovering the fates of their family and friends. After the war ended, and she returned home, Noack-Mosse cross-referenced her data with that of others to provide evidence of Nazi crimes. At least 35,000 people died at Theresienstadt and another 90,000 were sent on to death camps.

EVA NOACK-MOSSE (1902–1990) was a member of a distinguished German-Jewish family of publishers, jurists, scholars, and philanthropists, and she was married to a non-Jewish German, factors that initially delayed her arrest and internment. She continued to live in Germany after the war.

SKYE DONKEY is the director of the George L. Mosse Program in History at the University of Wisconsin–Madison. BIRUTĖ CIPLIJAUSKAITĖ (1929–2017) was a professor of Spanish at the University of Wisconsin–Madison.

Franco

A Personal and Political Biography

STANLEY G. PAYNE AND JESÚS PALACIOS

An intimate portrait of Franco the man

“[This] extremely insightful biography situates Franco not only in his Spanish context but also in the global context of twentieth-century dictatorships.” —Wall Street Journal

General Francisco Franco (1892–1975), ruler of Spain for nearly forty years, was one of the most powerful and controversial leaders in that nation’s long history. This deeply researched biography treats the three major aspects of his life—personal, military, and political. It depicts his early life, explains his career and rise to prominence as an army officer who became Europe’s youngest interwar brigadier general in 1926, and then discusses his role in the affairs of the troubled Second Spanish Republic.

Stanley G. Payne and Jesús Palacios examine in detail how Franco became dictator and how his leadership led to victory in the Spanish Civil War that consolidated his regime. They also explore Franco’s role in the great repression that accompanied the Civil War—resulting in tens of thousands of executions—and examine at length his controversial role in World War II. This masterful biography highlights Franco’s metamorphoses and adaptations to retain power as politics, culture, and economics shifted in the four decades of his dictatorship.

STANLEY G. PAYNE is the Hilldale–Jaume Vicens Vives Professor of History Emeritus at the University of Wisconsin–Madison and the author of many books, including A History of Fascism, 1914–1945; The Franco Regime, 1936–1975; and Spain: A Unique History. Traitor to his country, true to himself

“With dedicated sleuthing, informed speculation, and gifted storytelling style, Morey sheds new light on David Fagen, an African American insurgent against U.S. colonialism, who has long remained as elusive to historians as he was to the American soldiers that chased him through Philippine forests over a century ago.” —Paul Kramer, author of The Blood of Government: Race, Empire, the United States, and the Philippines

In 1898, in an era of racial terror at home and imperial conquest abroad, the United States sent its troops to suppress the Filipino struggle for independence, including three regiments of the famed African American “Buffalo Soldiers.” Among them was David Fagen, a twenty-year-old private in the Twenty-Fourth Infantry, who deserted to join the Filipino guerrillas. He led daring assaults and ambushes against his former comrades and commanders—who relentlessly pursued him without success—and his name became famous in the Philippines and in the African American community.

The outlines of Fagen’s legend have been known for more than a century, but the details of his military achievements, his personal history, and his ultimate fate have remained a mystery—until now. Michael Morey tracks Fagen’s life from his youth in Tampa as a laborer in a phosphate camp through his troubled sixteen months in the army, and, most importantly, over his long-obscured career as a guerrilla officer. Morey places this history in its larger military, political, and social context to tell the story of the young renegade whose courage and defiance challenged the supremacist assumptions of the time.

MICHAEL MOREY is a writer and independent historian. He lives in Sonoma County, California.

My Sister’s Mother

A Memoir of War, Exile, and Stalin’s Siberia

DONNA SOLECKA URBIKAS

A searing tale of war, trauma, and survival, from Poland to Siberia to Chicago

“Poignant and empowering.... Refreshingly honest... about the effects that war has on its survivors and inevitably their children.”
—Polish American Journal

“Set against the background of Polish history, Urbikas recounts her mother and sister's plight of deportation, liberation, and journey through Central Asia to England and finally the United States.... An ambitious and dense narrative.”—Polish American Historical Review

“Superbly records the bitter suffering both of victims of the Soviet Gulag and of displaced emigrants. In this context, Donna’s teenage ‘tragedy’ of failing to make the cheerleading squad is particularly poignant.”
—Marek Jan Chodakiewicz, author of Between Nazis and Soviets

In the 1950s, baby boomer Donna Solecka Urbikas grew up in the American Midwest yearning for a “normal” American family. But during World War II, her Polish-born mother and half sister had endured hunger, disease, and desperate escape from slave labor in Siberia. War and exile created a profound bond between mother and older daughter, one that Donna would struggle to find with either of them. In this unforgettable memoir, Donna recounts her family history and her own survivor’s story, finally understanding the damaged mother who had saved her sister.

DONNA SOLECKA URBIKAS was born in Coventry, England, and immigrated with her parents and sister to Chicago in 1952. She lives in Chicago.

Contemporary Directions in Asian American Dance

EDITED BY YUTIAN WONG

An essential guide and model for current studies of Asian American dance

“Addresses an astounding breadth of methodological issues and dance works, while holding together as a sustained, focused, and unflinching treatment of core questions in the emerging field of Asian American dance studies.”—Theatre Survey

“Marks the beginning of a new era in critical dance/performance studies scholarship. . . . These essays underscore how Asian bodies have long inhabited transnational dance spaces.”—Asian Diasporic Visual Cultures and the Americas

The definition of Asian American dance is as contested as the definition of “Asian American.” The contributors to this volume address such topics as the role of the 1960s Asian American movement in creating Japanese American taiko groups, and the experience of internment during World War II influencing butoh dance in Canada. Essays about artists such as Jay Hirabayashi, Alvin Tolentino, Shen Wei, Kun-Yang Lin, Yasuko Yokoshi, Eiko & Koma, Sam Kim, Roko Kawai, and Denise Uyehara look closely at the politics of how Asian aesthetics are set into motion and marketed. The volume includes first-person narratives, interviews, ethnography, cultural studies, performance studies, and comparative ethnic studies.

YUTIAN WONG is an associate professor in the School of Theatre and Dance at San Francisco State University. She is the author of Choreographing Asian America.

Philippine Trials of Japanese War Criminals

SHARON CHAMBERLAIN

Could victor nations fairly judge the vanquished in courts of law?

After World War II, thousands of Japanese throughout Asia were put on trial for war crimes. Examination of postwar trials is now a thriving area of research, but Sharon W. Chamberlain is the first to offer an authoritative assessment of the legal proceedings convened in the Philippines. These were trials conducted by Asians, not Western powers, and centered on the abuses suffered by local inhabitants rather than by prisoners of war. Her impressively researched work reveals the challenges faced by the Philippines, as a newly independent nation, in navigating issues of justice amid domestic and international pressures.

Chamberlain highlights the differing views of Filipinos and Japanese about the trials. The Philippine government aimed to show its commitment to impartial proceedings with just outcomes. In Japan, it appeared that defendants were selected arbitrarily, judges and prosecutors were biased, and lower-ranking soldiers were punished for crimes ordered by their superior officers. She analyzes the broader implications of this divergence as bilateral relations between the two nations evolved and contends that these competing narratives were reimagined in a way that, paradoxically, aided a path toward postwar reconciliation.

SHARON CHAMBERLAIN is an independent historian. She lives in Washington, DC.
Everyday Economic Survival in Myanmar

ARDETH MAUNG THAWNGHMUNG

How Burmese citizens survive on less than $5 a day—and what that means for democracy

“Required reading for students and professionals interested in political economy, development, aid, society, and culture in Myanmar and Southeast Asia, and within and beyond the field of Asian studies. Original and exciting.” —Maitrii Aung-Thwin, National University of Singapore

Reforms in Myanmar (formerly Burma) have eased restrictions on citizens’ political activities. Yet for most Burmese, Ardeth Maung Thawnghmung shows, eking out a living from day to day leaves little time for civic engagement. Citizens have coped with extreme hardship through great resourcefulness. But by making bad situations more tolerable in the short term, these coping strategies may hinder the emergence of the democratic values needed to sustain the country’s transition to a more open political environment.

Thawnghmung conducted in-depth interviews and surveys of 372 individuals from all walks of life and across geographical locations in Myanmar between 2008 and 2015. To frame her analysis, she provides context from countries with comparable political and economic situations. Her findings will be welcomed by political scientists and policy analysts, as well by journalists and humanitarian activists looking for substantive, reliable information about everyday life in a country that remains largely in the shadows.

ARDETH MAUNG THAWNGHMUNG is a professor of political science at the University of Massachusetts. Growing up in Burma, she and her family employed many of the coping strategies she would later study. She is the author of several books, including Behind the Teak Curtain: Authoritarianism, Agricultural Policies, and Political Legitimacy in Rural Burma.

Senegal Abroad
Linguistic Borders, Racial Formations, and Diasporic Imaginaries

MAYA ANGELA SMITH

The joys and complexities of multilingualism and migration

“A groundbreaking interdisciplinary book that breathes fresh air into the study of migration, which has been dominated by economic perspectives. It brings together migration studies, the practice of strategic multilingualism, and racialized identity formation.”—Cilas Kemedjio, University of Rochester

Senegal Abroad explores the fascinating role of language in national, transnational, postcolonial, racial, and migrant identities. Capturing the experiences of Senegalese in Paris, Rome, and New York, it depicts how they make sense of who they are—and how they fit into their communities, countries, and the larger global Senegalese diaspora. Drawing on extensive interviews with a wide range of emigrants as well as people of Senegalese heritage, Maya Angela Smith contends that they shape their identity as they purposefully switch between languages and structure their discourse.

The Senegalese are notable, Smith suggests, both in their capacity for movement and in their multifaceted approach to language. She finds that, although the emigrants she interviews express complicated relationships to the multiple languages they speak and the places they inhabit, they also convey pleasure in both travel and language. Offering a mix of poignant, funny, reflexive, introspective, and witty stories, they blur the lines between the utility and pleasure of language, allowing a more nuanced understanding of why and how Senegalese move.

MAYA ANGELA SMITH is an assistant professor of French and Italian studies at the University of Washington.

Witchcraft, Vodun, and Healing in Southern Benin

DOUGLAS J. FALEN

Examining the wisdom inherent in African cultural practices

"Guides readers straight into the untranslatable Beninois world of ãzê on its own terms. Falen’s sensitivity and commitment to local framings and his accessible experiential narratives make this an ideal ethnography with which to explore the ontological turn, as well as a marvelously provocative challenge to the bulwarked categories separating science from magic and religion.”—Sasha Newell, author of The Modernity Bluff

In this sensitive and personal investigation into Benin’s occult world, Douglas J. Falen wrestles with the challenges of encountering a reality in which magic, science, and the Vodun religion converge into a single universal force. He takes seriously his Beninese interlocutors’ insistence that the indigenous phenomenon known as ãzê (“witchcraft”) is an African science, credited with fantastic and productive deeds, such as teleportation and supernatural healing.

Although the Beninese understanding of ãzê reflects positive scientific properties in its use of specialized knowledge to harness nature’s energy and realize economic success, its boundless power is inherently ambivalent because it can corrupt its users, who dispense death and destruction. Witches and healers are equivalent to supervillains and superheroes, locked in epic battles over malevolent and benevolent human desires. Beninese people’s discourse about such mystical confrontations expresses a philosophy of moral duality and cosmic balance. Falen demonstrates how a deep engagement with another lived reality opens our minds and contributes to understanding across cultural difference.

DOUGLAS J. FALEN is a professor of anthropology at Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Georgia. He is the author of Power and Paradox: Authority, Insecurity, and Creativity in Fon Gender Relations.

Global Russian Cultures

EDITED BY KEVIN M. F. PLATT

Where are the borders of Russian culture today?

“Offers a much-needed remapping of ‘Russian culture’ as a global phenomenon and radically opens up the question of who produces and owns it, how it is sold and consumed, and how it is ‘weaponized’ today.”

—Andy Byford, author of Literary Scholarship in Late Imperial Russia

Is there an essential Russian identity? What happens when “Russian” literature is written in English, by such authors as Gary Shteyngart or Lara Vapnyar? What is the geographic “home” of Russian culture created and shared via the internet? Global Russian Cultures innovatively considers these and many related questions about the literary and cultural life of Russians who in successive waves of migration have dispersed to the United States, Europe, and Israel, or who remained after the collapse of the USSR in Ukraine, the Baltic states, and the Central Asian states.

The volume’s internationally renowned contributors treat the many different global Russian cultures not as “displaced” elements but rather as independent entities in their own right. They describe diverse forms of literature, music, film, and everyday life that transcend and defy political, geographic, and even linguistic borders. This volume contends that no state or society can lay claim to be the single or authentic representative of Russianness. In so doing, it contests the conceptions of culture and identity at the root of nation-building projects in and around Russia.

KEVIN M. F. PLATT is the Edmund J. and Louise W. Kahn Term Professor in the Humanities in the Department of Russian and East European Studies at the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of Terror and Greatness: Ivan and Peter as Russian Myths and History in a Grotesque Key: Russian Literature and the Idea of Revolution.

Reframing Russian Modernism

EDITED BY IRINA SHEVELENKO

Modernism as a varied and transformative social force in Russia

“Demonstrates the ways Russian writers aspired to move beyond art—to work for the social, physical, and spiritual transformation of individual and communal life, to make life ‘new’ and ‘modern.’”—Irina Paperno, University of California, Berkeley

Presenting a multifaceted portrait of modernist culture in Russia, an array of distinguished scholars shows how artists and writers in the early twentieth century engaged with politics, science, and religion. At a time when many Russian social institutions looked to the past, modernist arts powerfully amplified a gamut of new ideas about individual and collective transformation.

Expanding upon prior studies that focus more specifically on literary manifestations of the movement, Reframing Russian Modernism features original research that ranges broadly, from political aesthetics to Darwinism to yoga. These unique complementary perspectives counter reductionism of any kind, integrating the study of Russian modernism into the larger body of humanistic scholarship devoted to modernity.

IRINA SHEVELENKO is a professor of Slavic languages and literature at the University of Wisconsin–Madison. She is the author of two books published in Russian, Modernism as Archaism: Nationalism and the Quest for a Modernist Aesthetic in Russia and Tsvetaeva’s Literary Path: Ideology, Poetics, and Identity of the Author in the Context of the Epoch.

The Poetry and Poetics of Olga Sedakova

Origins, Philosophies, Points of Contention

EDITED BY STEPHANIE SANDLER, MARIA KHOTIMSKY, MARGARITA KRIMMEL, AND OLEG NOVIKOV

Assessing the contributions of a leading poet and public intellectual in Russia today

Olga Sedakova stands out among contemporary Russian poets for the integrity, erudition, intellectual force, and moral courage of her writing. After years of flourishing quietly in the late Soviet underground, she has increasingly brought her considered voice into public debates to speak out for freedom of belief and for those who have been treated unjustly. This volume, the first collection of scholarly essays to treat her work in English, assesses her contributions as a poet and as a thinker, presenting far-reaching accounts of broad themes and patterns of thought across her writings as well as close readings of individual texts.

Essayists from Russia, Ukraine, Germany, Italy, and the United States show how Sedakova has contributed to ongoing aesthetic and cultural debates. Like Sedakova’s own work, the volume affirms the capacity of words to convey meaning and to change our understanding of life itself. The volume also includes dozens of elegant new translations of Sedakova’s poems.

A Reader’s Guide to Andrei Bely’s
Petersburg
EDITED BY LEONID LIVAK

A gateway to a landmark modernist Russian novel

“The fifteen distinguished contributors do more than elucidate a world-class novel. They provide capsule courses on a spectrum of topics that mattered deeply to Andrei Bely but are obscure to many readers today: anthroposophy, neoKantianism, ‘life-creation,’ racial thinking, political terrorism. A path-breaking literary portal.”—Caryl Emerson, Princeton University

Andrei Bely’s 1913 masterwork Petersburg is widely regarded as the most important Russian novel of the twentieth century. Vladimir Nabokov ranked it with James Joyce’s Ulysses, Franz Kafka’s Metamorphosis, and Marcel Proust’s In Search of Lost Time. Few artistic works created before the First World War encapsulate and articulate the sensibility, ideas, phobias, and aspirations of Russian and transnational modernism as comprehensively.

Bely expected his audience to participate in unraveling the work’s many meanings, narrative strains, and patterns of details. In their essays, the contributors clarify these complexities, summarize the intellectual and artistic contexts that informed Petersburg’s creation and reception, and review the interpretive possibilities contained in the novel. This volume will aid a broad audience of Anglophone readers in understanding and appreciating Petersburg.

LEONID LIVAK is a professor in the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures and the Centre for Jewish Studies at the University of Toronto. He is the author of Russian Émigrés in the Intellectual and Literary Life of Interwar France, The Jewish Persona in the European Imagination, and How It Was Done in Paris: Russian Émigré Literature and French Modernism.

In the Flesh

Embodied Identities in Roman Elegy

ERIKA ZIMMERMANN DAMER

A fresh feminist take on Latin love poetry

“Moving beyond theorizing about the textualized body in Roman elegy, and taking her cue from feminist ‘new materialisms,’ Zimmermann Damer reasserts the presence in elegiac poetry of bodies themselves, with all their abject materiality, genderedness, and sexiness. An impressive study that is a delight to read.”—David Wray, University of Chicago

In the Flesh deeply engages postmodern and new materialist feminist thought in close readings of three significant poets—Propertius, Tibullus, and Ovid—writing in the early years of Rome’s Augustan Principate. In their poems, they represent the flesh-and-blood body in both its integrity and vulnerability, as an index of social position along intersecting axes of sex, gender, status, and class. Erika Zimmermann Damer underscores the fluid, dynamic, and contingent nature of identities in Roman elegy, in response to a period of rapid legal, political, and social change.

Recognizing this power of material flesh to shape elegiac poetry, she asserts, grants figures at the margins of this poetic discourse—mistresses, rivals, enslaved characters, overlooked members of households—their own identities, even when they do not speak. She demonstrates how the three poets create a prominent aesthetic of corporeal abjection and imperfection, associating the body as much with blood, wounds, and corporeal disintegration as with elegance, refinement, and sensuality.

ERIKA ZIMMERMANN DAMER is an associate professor of classics and of women, gender, and sexuality studies at the University of Richmond.
How did Etruscan consumers affect the production of Athenian vases for export?

“Challenges and enriches our understanding of the ancient economy, the Athenian vase trade and its Etruscan customers, the iconography of Attic vases, and Etruscan funerary practices.”—Denise Demetriou, author of Negotiating Identity in the Ancient Mediterranean

A lucrative trade in Athenian pottery flourished from the early sixth until the late fifth century B.C.E., finding an eager market in Etruria. Most studies of these painted vases focus on the artistry and worldview of the Greeks who made them, but Sheramy D. Bundrick shifts attention to their Etruscan customers, ancient trade networks, and archaeological contexts.

Thousands of Greek painted vases have emerged from excavations of tombs, sanctuaries, and settlements throughout Etruria, from southern coastal centers to northern communities in the Po Valley. Using documented archaeological assemblages, especially from tombs in southern Etruria, Bundrick challenges the widely held assumption that Etruscans were hellenized through Greek imports. She marshals evidence to show that Etruscan consumers purposefully selected figured pottery that harmonized with their own local needs and customs, so much so that the vases are better described as etruscanized. Athenian ceramic workers, she contends, learned from traders which shapes and imagery sold best to the Etruscans and employed a variety of strategies to maximize artistry, output, and profit.

SHERAMY D. BUNDRICK is a professor of art history at the University of South Florida St. Petersburg. She is the author of Music and Image in Classical Athens.

Inari Sámi Folklore

Stories from Aanaar

AUGUST V. KOSKIMIES AND TOIVO I. ITKONEN, REVISED BY LEA LAITINEN
EDITED AND TRANSLATED BY TIM FRANDY

Centennial edition of a folklore gem

“Frandy has made visible a goldmine of folklore that has been invisible to outsiders, and he introduces it in a deeply informed, nuanced context.”
—Krister Stoor, Umeå University

A rich multivoiced anthology of folktales, legends, joik songs, proverbs, riddles, and other verbal art, this is the most comprehensive collection of Sámi oral tradition available in English to date. Collected by August V. Koskimies and Toivo I. Itkonen in the 1880s from nearly two dozen storytellers from the arctic Aanaar (Inari) region of northeast Finland, the material reveals a complex web of social relations that existed both inside and far beyond the community.

First published in 1918 only in the Aanaar Sámi language and in Finnish, this anthology is now available in a centennial English-language edition for a global readership. Translator Tim Frandy has added biographies of the storytellers, maps and period photos, annotations, and a glossary. In headnotes that contextualize the stories, he explains such underlying themes as Aanaar conflicts with neighboring Sámi and Finnish communities, the collapse of the wild reindeer populations less than a century before, and the pre-Christian past in Aanaar. He introduces us to the bawdy humor of Antti Kitti, the didacticism of Iisakki Mannermaa, and the feminist leanings of Juho Petteri Lusmaniem, emphasizing that folktales and proverbs are rooted in the experiences of individuals who are links in a living tradition.

TIM FRANDY is an assistant professor in the Department of Folk Studies and Anthropology at Western Kentucky University. A member of the Sámi American community, he has been active in Indigenous cultural revitalization movements in North America and Scandinavia.

The Round Barn: A Biography of an American Farm

Volume Four, The Farm to the World

JACQUELINE DOUGAN JACKSON

An influential dairy farm and family, from the early 1900s to 1972

“Jackson’s saga is our most detailed history of Midwest farming and dairying from 1900 to the 1970s. The Dougan farm was a top dairy, utilizing the latest developments in crops—including the early years of alfalfa and the advent of hybrid seed corn—and the beginning of artificial insemination and proved sires. Jackson writes with warmth and empathy, and we are the fortunate beneficiaries of her work.” —Robert Walton, former president of American Breeders Service

With a storyteller’s style and a historian’s fidelity, Jacqueline Dougan Jackson records the life and death of the internationally renowned Dougan Dairy farm near Beloit, Wisconsin. Volume four completes the story by documenting the family’s interactions with agriculture in the state, nation, and wider world. Highlights include Grampa Dougan giving public radio talks heard throughout the Midwest and traveling with a university professor to encourage farm record-keeping. Grampa and Grama Dougan are the first couple with portraits in the University of Wisconsin Agricultural Hall of Fame. Ron Dougan develops and markets hybrid seed corn and joins the board of the Wisconsin Scientific Breeders Institute, which evolves to American Breeders Service (ABS), the largest artificial insemination company in the world.

For twenty-five years after World War II, the family welcomes Scandinavians in a farm exchange program, and the farm continues close ties with Beloit College and the University of Wisconsin. In 1961 the Dougons host Wisconsin Farm Progress Days, and Jackie eats with the governor. Eventually Interstate 90 slices through the property, presaging the death of the farm. Readers will be entertained as well as educated by the lively, involved, inventive Dougan family, who always remember Grampa’s motto painted on the farm’s silo: “Life as well as a living.”

African Economic History
Edited by Mariana Candido, University of Notre Dame; Toyin Falola, University of Texas at Austin; Jennifer Lokrantz, American University of Nigeria; and Paul E. Lovejoy, York University

African Economic History was founded in 1974 by the African Studies Program at the University of Wisconsin and is also associated with the Harriet Tubman Institute for Research on Africa and Its Diasporas at York University. The journal publishes scholarly essays in English and French on the economic history of African societies from precolonial times to the present. It features research in a variety of fields and time periods, including studies on labor, slavery, trade and commercial networks, economic transformations, colonialism, migration, development policies, social and economic inequalities, and poverty. The audience includes historians, economists, anthropologists, sociologists, political scientists, policymakers, and a range of other scholars interested in African economies—past and present.

Ecological Restoration
Edited by Steven N. Handel, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey

Ecological Restoration is a forum for people interested in all areas of ecological restoration. It features the technical and biological aspects of restoring landscapes, as well as emerging professional issues, the role of education, evolving theories of postmodern humans and their environment, land-use policy, the science of collaboration, and more. The journal offers peer-reviewed feature articles, short notes, and book reviews as well as abstracts of pertinent work published elsewhere.

The Journal of Human Resources
Edited by David N. Figlio, Northwestern University

Founded in 1965, The Journal of Human Resources is among the leading journals in empirical microeconomics. Intended for scholars, policymakers, and practitioners, each issue examines research in a variety of fields, including labor economics, development economics, health economics, and the economics of education, discrimination, and retirement.

Landscape Journal
Edited by Brian Lee, University of Kentucky

The mission of landscape architecture is supported by research and theory in many fields. Landscape Journal offers in-depth exploration of ideas and challenges that are central to contemporary design, planning, and teaching. It includes editorial columns, creative work, and reviews of books, conferences, technology, and exhibitions.

Ghana Studies
Edited by Kofi Baku, University of Ghana, Legon; Carina Ray, Brandeis University

Ghana Studies is the journal of the Ghana Studies Association, an international affiliate of the African Studies Association. Published annually, GS strives to provide a forum for cutting-edge original research about Ghana’s society, culture, environment, and history. All of the scholarly articles in GS are peer reviewed by two anonymous referees, coordinated by an editorial team based in both North America and Ghana. Since its first issue in 1998, GS has published significant work by leading scholars based in Ghana, the United States, Canada, and Europe. In addition, GS features occasional material, source reports, and book reviews. It also serves to provide official notice of fellowships and prizes awarded by the Ghana Studies Association.

Land Economics
Edited by Daniel Phaneuf, University of Wisconsin–Madison

Land Economics is devoted to the study of economic aspects of the entire spectrum of natural and environmental resources, emphasizing conceptual and empirical work with direct relevance for public policy. Founded in 1925 by Richard T. Ely, the emphasis remains with articles that address the determinants and consequences of economic activity on the value and use of land, or the contribution of natural and environmental resources to economic activity.

Luso-Brazilian Review
Edited by Kathryn Bishop-Sánchez, University of Wisconsin–Madison; Peter M. Beattie, Michigan State University; Luís Madureira, University of Wisconsin–Madison; and Pedro Meira Monteiro, Princeton University

Luso-Brazilian Review publishes interdisciplinary scholarship on Portuguese, Brazilian, and Lusophone African cultures, with special emphasis on scholarly works in literature, history, and the social sciences. Published biannually, each issue of the LBR includes articles and book reviews, which may be written in either English or Portuguese.
Monatshefte
Edited by Hans Adler, University of Wisconsin–Madison

Founded in 1899, Monatshefte is the oldest continuing journal of German studies in the United States. It offers scholarly articles about the language and literature of German-speaking countries and cultural matters that have literary or linguistic significance. Issues contain extensive book reviews of current scholarship in German studies, and each winter issue features “Personalia,” a listing of college and university German Department personnel from across the United States and Canada, as well as special surveys and articles dealing with professional concerns.

Native Plants Journal
Edited by Stephen Love, University of Idaho

Native Plants Journal is a forum for dispersing practical information about planting and growing North American native plants for conservation, reforestation, landscaping, highway corridors, and related uses. The second issue of each year includes the Native Plants Materials Directory, which provides information about producers of native plant materials in the United States and Canada. NPJ began in January 2000 as a cooperative effort of the USDA Forest Service and the University of Idaho, with assistance from the USDA Agricultural Research Service and the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

TOMMY THOMPSON’S CAREER
1941 Born in Elroy, Wisconsin
1966 Runs for Wisconsin State Assembly against Republican incumbent in the primary and scores upset win. Goes on to win the general election.
1981 Becomes minority leader of the assembly.
1996 Runs successfully for governor. Is reelected three times; the last time in 1998.
2001 Resigns governorship to join the cabinet of President George W. Bush as Secretary of Health and Human Services.
2005 Leaves the Bush administration to pursue private sector opportunities.
2016 Celebrates his 75th birthday and is honored at events commemorating the 50th anniversary of his first election to the assembly and 30th anniversary of his first election as governor.

Once when I was visiting President George H. W. Bush in Washington, while he was president, he took me out to lunch at the Aibi Club, a private club where he was a member. It was clear the staff there revered him. At one point, Bush took me into the kitchen and introduced me to the chef and the waiters. It was hard for me to imagine a president doing that, but he did. Leaving the kitchen, Bush said, “Never forget where you came from, Tommy.” I never have. — excerpt from Tommy: My Journey of a Lifetime © The Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin System.
