Available here for the first time is the remarkably diverse folk music of America’s Upper Midwest, captured in field recordings by collectors for the Library of Congress from 1937 to 1946. This groundbreaking documentary project—5 CDs of restored rare music, a new documentary film on DVD, and a richly annotated book to go with them—weaves the songs and spirit of the Upper Midwest’s peoples into America’s folksong fabric.

These tunes and songs in more than twenty-five languages showcase a significant but overlooked part of the nation’s musical heritage, made by immigrant, Native American, rural, and working class performers in Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Included in this deluxe box set:

- 187 songs and tunes, digitally restored
- Songs in more than 25 languages, with full original lyrics and English translations
- More than 200 performers, with biographical notes and many photographs

Copublished with Dust-to-Digital, in collaboration with the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress and the Association for Cultural Equity /Alan Lomax Archive.

2015, 5 CDS, 1 DVD, HARDCOVER BOOK, 448 PP., 94 B/W ILLUS.

Wild Rice Goose and Other Dishes of the Upper Midwest

This is your guide to cooking wildfoods that you can hunt, fish, or forage—or buy from a growing number of wildfoods vendors—in the Upper Midwest. You’ll savor treasured recipes like Rabbit Pie, Morel Mushroom Scramble, and Cathy’s Plum Lake Bluegill. You’ll also discover a wealth of dishes reflecting the region’s ethnic riches. Cooks will appreciate the clear, kitchen-tested recipes, and fans of sporting literature will enjoy the lyrical writing.

“A must-have addition to the outdoorsman’s home or cabin kitchen bookshelf. Motoviloff knows his stuff – and his stuffing.”

—Dan Small, host of Outdoors Radio and coauthor of the Wild Harvest Cookbook

A Black Gambler’s World of Liquor, Vice, and Presidential Politics

William Thomas Scott of Illinois, 1839-1917

Bruce L. Mouser

Foreword by Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

This is the first biography of William Thomas Scott, an ambitious hustler who briefly was the first African American nominee of a national political party for president of the United States. His life reveals the roots of African American disillusionment with the Republican Party and the dynamics of interest-group politics in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Through the Day, through the Night

A Flemish Belgian Boyhood and World War II

Jan Vansina

Jan Vansina began life in a seemingly sheltered environment. That cocoon was pierced by the escalating tensions that gripped Europe in the 1930s and 1940s. Vansina, a U,W historian and anthropologist known for his insights into oral tradition and social memory, draws on his own memories and those of his siblings to reconstruct daily life in Belgium during World War II.

“Vansina brings a richness of detail to discussions of even the smallest matters, details that would be difficult to find elsewhere.”—Luc Sante, author of Low Life

A Memoir

George L. Mosse

Foreword by Walter Laqueur

Just two weeks before his death in Madison in 1999, George L. Mosse, one of the great American historians, finished writing his memoir, a fascinating and fluent account of a remarkable life that spanned three continents and many of the major events of the twentieth century.

“A delightful and illuminating memoir of a man whose piercing insights changed our understanding of modern Europe.”—Kirkus Reviews

Worse than the Devil

Anarchists, Clarence Darrow, and Justice in a Time of Terror

Dean A. Strang

In its focus on a moment when patriotism, nativism, and terror swept the nation, Worse than the Devil exposes broad concerns that persist even today as the United States continues to struggle with administering criminal justice to newcomers and outsiders.

“Strang’s fascinating book excavates a conspiracy trial in Milwaukee back in 1917 that sheds crucial insights into the failings of our legal system and the hazards of succumbing to mass hysteria against immigrants and alleged terrorists. The book provides urgent lessons for us all.”—Matthew Rothschild, editor of The Progressive

A Quiet Corner of the War
The Civil War Letters of Gilbert and Esther Claflin, Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, 1862–1863
Gilbert Claflin and Esther Claflin
Edited by Judy Cook, Foreword by Keith S. Bohannon
In 2002, Judy Cook discovered a packet of letters written by her great-great-grandparents, Gilbert and Esther Claflin, during the American Civil War. An unexpected bounty, these letters offer visceral witness to the war, recounting the trials of a family separated.

Letters Home to Sarah
The Civil War Letters of Guy C. Taylor, Thirty-Sixth Wisconsin Volunteers
Guy C. Taylor, Edited by Kevin Alderson & Patsy Alderson
Introduction by Kathryn Shively Meier
Forgotten in an attic in Cashton for more than a century, these 165 letters were written by a young farmer-turned-soldier who served in the 36th Wisconsin Regiment in the American Civil War. Whether describing training at Camp Randall, his bouts of measles and malaria, the Siege of Petersburg, Lee’s surrender at Appomattox, or the post-war parade of the armies through Washington D.C., Guy Taylor shows himself a keen and thoughtful observer. The letters show, too, Taylor’s transformation from a lonely and somewhat disgruntled infantryman to a thoughtful commentator on the greater ideals of the war.

Flags of the Iron Brigade
Howard Michael Madaus and Richard H. Zeitlin
During the Civil War, some 5000 Union Army soldiers filled the ranks of the Iron Brigade: the Second, Sixth, and Seventh Wisconsin, the Nineteenth Indiana, and the Twenty-Fourth Michigan Volunteer Infantry regiments. The regimental flags were a tangible symbol of the Union and were always in the forefront of battle, proudly displayed and tenaciously defended. Many men died to keep their flags aloft. This is the story of how the flags of the Iron Brigade came into being and the purposes they served both during and after the war.

Sister
An African American Life in Search of Justice
Sylvia Bell White and Jody LePage
When a Milwaukee police officer killed Sylvia Bell White’s younger brother Daniel Bell in 1958, the Bell family suspected a racial murder but could do nothing to prove it. Twenty years later, when one of the two officers involved in the incident unexpectedly came forward, Sylvia was the driving force behind her family’s quest for justice. In these pages, Sylvia emerges as a buoyant spirit, a sparkling narrator, and a powerful witness to racial injustice in a life story that reaches from her own enslaved grandparents to the nation’s first African American president.

A Tiny Colt’s Fight for Life

Jeffrey L. Tucker

Foreword by Carolyn L. Stull, PhD

One bitterly cold winter afternoon, a nine-month-old colt—extremely weak, starving, left to die—was frozen to the rock-hard white landscape of a Northern Wisconsin pasture. His call for help was answered, and the struggle of the little colt, called Windchill by his rescuers, was reported widely. Soon 1.2 million people were following Windchill’s progress on a blog and webcam. Warmed by Windchill tells how Jeffrey L. Tucker, owner of nearby Raindance Farms, and Kathi Davis, owner of a horse training operation co-located at Raindance, rescued and cared for the colt, aided by an outpouring of assistance.

Cows

A Closer Look

Paul W. Thoresen

Here are Holsteins as they’ve rarely been depicted before—photographic abstractions in black and white, artist’s models with long-lashed liquid eyes, soulful individuals and sisters of the herd, the fecund embodiments of mother’s milk, tenants of the land, spirits and myths. Southern Wisconsin photographer Paul Thoresen captures the essence of cows in this collection of striking images.

The Young John Muir
An Environmental Biography
Steven J. Holmes
“A landmark in the scholarship about John Muir and the developmental power of wilderness.”—John C. Elder, editor of American Nature Writers

As a founder of the Sierra Club and promoter of the national parks, as a passionate nature writer and as a principal figure of the environmental movement, John Muir stands as a powerful symbol of connection with the natural world. But how did Muir’s own relationship with nature begin?

In this pioneering book, Steven J. Holmes—from his childhood in Scotland and Wisconsin through his young adulthood in the Midwest and Canada—offers a dramatically new interpretation of Muir’s formative years, one that reveals the agony as well as the elation of his earliest experiences of nature.

Wisconsin Talk
Linguistic Diversity in the Badger State
Edited by Thomas Purnell, Eric Rainy, and Joseph Salmons
Yah! Wisconsin is one of the most linguistically rich places in North America. It has the greatest diversity of American Indian languages east of the Mississippi; French place names dot the state’s map; German, Norwegian, and Polish are still spoken by tens of thousands of people; and the influx of new immigrants speaking Spanish, Hmong, and Somali continues to enrich the state’s cultural landscape. An engaging survey for both general readers and language scholars, Wisconsin Talk illuminates why language matters in our everyday lives.

Wisconsin German Land and Life
Edited by Heike Bungert, Cora Lee Kluge, and Robert C. Ostergren
Migrants from farming communities along the Rhine relocated to Wisconsin in the nineteenth century. Drawing from records and archives on both sides of the Atlantic, these scholars look at the migrants’ situation in their original homeland, their experience of the migration process, and their relationship to the land in Wisconsin.

Coming Out Swiss
Anne Herrmann

In a work that is part memoir, part history and travelogue, Anne Hermann offers a witty, profound, and ultimately universal exploration of identity and community.

“Anne Hermann writes with verve, passion, insight, and wisdom as she explores what it means to be Swiss in both a personal and national sense. Coming Out Swiss is at once a splendid and provocative feast of facts and a stunning personal revelation.”—Lisa Knopp, author of What the River Carries: Encounters with the Mississippi, Missouri, and Platte

Space
A Memoir
Jesse Lee Kercheval
Jesse Lee Kercheval opens her story in Cocoa, Florida, in 1966 as a precocious ten-year-old whose family—father, mother, two little girls—is trying to ride the Space Race’s tide of optimism. But even as the rockets keep going up, the Kercheval family slowly spirals down.

“An incandescent girlhood memoir. . . So lyrical and poignant are the events it chronicles, it is hard to believe that it wasn’t all by design.”—Booklist (Starred Review)

Barnstorm
Contemporary Wisconsin Fiction
Edited by Raphael Kadushin
“That [Barnstorm is] a strong collection is no surprise. But what is unexpected is how different the stories are from each other, and how most of them refuse to adhere to the common preconception of a ‘Wisconsin short story’. . . . This is a worthy collection of stories by any standard, highly recommended for those who want to tap into the talent living among us.”—The Capital Times, Madison, Wisconsin

My Favorite Tyrants

Joanne Diaz

“Forged of equal parts brains and brass, these poems bleed and shine and all but blind us. How wild they are, how beautiful! I love the way Joanne Diaz uses light and noise to tell us more than any history book can of the tyrants who distort yet give meaning to our lives: Castro, Stalin, our teachers, our parents, ourselves.” —David Kirby

H.H. Bennett, Photographer
His American Landscape
Sara Rath; Foreword by Tom Banberger
This richly illustrated biography portrays the nationally renowned Wisconsin Dells photographer H.H. Bennett (1843–1908) as a husband, father, artist, inventor, entrepreneur, booster, and preservationist. In addition to his well-known images of Dells rock formations, raftsmen, tourists, and Ho-Chunk people, this book includes Bennett’s little-known photographs of Chicago’s skyscrapers, Milwaukee’s grand residences and riverfronts, Wisconsin rural landscapes, and the St. Paul Winter Carnival.

Charles Munch, Dreaming in Color

Paintings 1971–2006
Jody Clowes and Richard Ely

Charles Munch, Dreaming in Color reveals Munch’s transition from the poetic realism of his early work to the brilliant semi-abstraction of today, as well as the personal and artistic crisis at the heart of that dramatic transformation. Jody Clowes contributes a probing essay of critical analysis. Richard Ely’s long biographical essay narrates Munch’s journey from suburban childhood to visionary landscape painter. The book also includes a chronology of Munch’s artistic life and an exhibition history.
